Today is the second of the Sundays (after the 13th) when Jesus is said to be making his way to Jerusalem. Jerusalem also features in 1R, as the place where offerings will be brought to the Lord. This passage, almost the last verses of Isaiah are quite radical, as they say that ‘the nations of every language’ are being gathered by the Lord to witness his glory, not just places with a Jewish diaspora, some of which are listed, but also ‘distant islands that have never heard of the Lord’. Gentiles are invited in. The psalm too says unequivocally ‘all you nations.’ The Gospel (written by a Gentile) emphasizes that the chosen people will have no privileged access to salvation and that they may be left outside while; people from all corners of the earth enter before they do. As for us, mostly Gentiles, we must do as the psalm says and proclaim the Good news to the whole world. 2R is not connected to the same theme, but is a passage about fatherly correction and how, though painful at the time, it will have good effects.

At Mary’s Assumption, as we see in Revelation, the queen once again takes her place at the right hand of the Son of David.

Our second reading shows us why this is fitting: “in Christ shall all be brought to life, but each one in proper order.” What is implicit in St. Paul’s statement is revealed in Revelation. The consummation of Christ’s work has begun, as is proper, with the Assumption of the queen mother. (Liturgy planner)

Wszystko, co czynimy, czynimy dla Chrystusa, szukając najpierw Królestwa Bożego i mając na uwadze dobro innych. Nie żyjemy już dla siebie, ale dla Chrystusa. Zabiegamy o Jego chwałę, ponieważ On nabył nas Krwią swoją. Nasze serce słucha tylko Jego głosu, bo On sam jest naszym jedynym Mistrzem i Nauczycielem. Pan nie przyszedł, aby Mu służono, lecz żeby służyć i oddać życie za wszystkich. Uczymy się od Niego pokory serca, aby zajmować ostatnie miejsce i pozostawać prostym i skromnym. (Mateusz.pl)
