The 1R is from the short book of Malachi (not thought to be a personal name, it means Messenger) and its description of the fiery end of evildoers is characteristic of its tone of reproach to the people of God for breaking faith with the Lord. The aria from Handel's Messiah But who may abide the day of his coming takes words from the beginning of this chapter. The Day of the Lord is not mentioned explicitly in the Gospel but Jesus tells of a general expectation that there will be tribulations and persecutions, betrayals (even by your family - see Sunday 23) and death for some of his followers. In particular he looks at the Temple and foretells its destruction (this passage and last Sunday's are from after Jesus's entrance into Jerusalem; when Luke was writing, this catastrophe had already taken place (it was in 70 AD.)) What Jesus asks for is perseverance and endurance (see the Gospel Acclamations) in the face of these 'fearful sights', and Luke was warning his readers that they still needed to heed Jesus, but not to be afraid; God would give them an eloquence and a wisdom which their persecutors would not be able to contradict. Luke went on to write in Acts about the words of Stephen before his death, and of Paul (chapters 21-26) on his arrest (after preaching in the temple at Jerusalem!) and before his voyage to Rome and his own martyr's death. ### For Today Mass

Responsorial psalm

The Lord comes to rule the peoples with fairness.

Gospel acclamation

Stay awake, praying at all times for the strength to stand with confidence before the Son of Man.

Świątynia to miejsce święte, które zawierało miejsce najświętsze gdzie, w przekonaniu Żydów, zamieszkiwał Bóg. Świątynia w Jerozolimie była jedyną ziemską przystanią Boga. A jednak Jezus zapowiedział upadek świątyni i historia przyznała Mu rację. O ile pierwsze słowa Jezusa są zrozumiałe, tak dalsza Jego nauka już taka nie jest. W przemówieniu Jezusa mieszają się ze sobą wątki dotyczące zburzenia Jerozolimy i świątyni, oraz tematy głoszące koniec świata i paruzję. Nie jest prostym oddzielić jedne od drugich. Wydaje się, że Jezus mówi przede wszystkim na temat końca dziejów na ziemi. Z Jego słów udziela się nam przekonanie, że koniec będzie straszny. Uczniowie Jezusa będą prześladowani, będą znienawidzeni. Intencją Jezusa nie jest straszenie kogokolwiek. On pragnie uświadomić wszystkim to, co powinno się wydarzyć i nauczyć odpowiedniego zachowania się w takiej sytuacji. Najważniejszą zawsze pozostaje wierność Bogu. (Mateusz.pl)
